Professional Component (ABET):
The course introduces and reinforces computer and programming skills needed for Civil and Environmental Engineering practice, as well as introducing numerical methods applicable to a wide range of areas of research and practice in Engineering. These tools are applicable in subsequent laboratory, analysis and design classes in the required B.S. curriculum and potentially in graduate study. General problem-solving skills are also developed and refined.

Attendance Policy, Class Expectations, and Make-Up Policy

Class attendance is not mandatory, however there will be lab assignments that will contribute towards your total class grade and are due as indicated in Canvas. It is expected that students will bring a fully-charged laptop to class meetings, and they will be utilized for the lab assignments and Exams.

Cell phones, laptops, and other external resources may not be used during class or exams except as otherwise directed by the assignment/exam instructions or the instructor.

Late assignments will be accepted as indicated in Canvas (in most cases the day prior to the following lab) past the due date for a maximum of 60% credit. If appropriate extenuating circumstances cause a student to miss a scheduled exam date, the student must obtain approval from and arrange (ahead of time whenever possible) with the Instructor for a make-up exam date.

Excused absences must be consistent with university policies in the undergraduate catalog (https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx) and require appropriate documentation.
