Business Management - Minors in Entrepreneurship and Real Estate
Innovation Fellows Program - University of Florida
Herbert Wertheim College of Engineering/Warrington College of Business

Trevor Bosetti is a Senior at the University of Florida's Heavener School of Business, pursuing an undergraduate degree in Business Management and minors in Entrepreneurship and Real Estate. Trevor plans to continue his education at the University of Florida through pursuing a Master of Science in Information Systems and Operations Management.

Throughout his time at UF, Trevor has made sure to involve himself with people, organizations, and clubs that would further his personal and professional development. Trevor was a member and participant of the Heavener Leadership Challenge where aspiring business leaders met to learn valuable leadership skills and in turn continue to develop and hone personal traits that are integral to overall success.

Trevor was also a member of the entrepreneurship collective organization, a collection of students with interest or experience in the world of entrepreneurship that meet and collaborate on possible problems to solve, or projects currently underway. Finally, Trevor is a member of The Delta Chi fraternity where he served as the external Philanthropy chair, helping organize promotional events and campaigns that helped serve the Jimmy V foundation for cancer research. The involvement in all of these different campus organizations has helped Trevor further develop himself personally and professionally; making him an ambitious, achievement oriented individual, who thrives in team settings.

Aside from involvement in clubs and organizations Trevor has also received a diverse amount of professional experience in his time at UF. Trevor spent his Freshman summer as a digital Marketing intern for CEA, a local marketing firm where Trevor was able to gain valuable skills in various digital marketing tools as well as customer profiling. Trevor spent the ensuing summer working on a campaign with ESPN to help rebrand the NCAA's St. Petersburg Bowl game into the Gasparilla Bowl. Trevor assisted in coordinating a commercial that aired nationally, and in the management of a promotional social media campaign. This past summer, Trevor was able to get his first taste of working in the field of entrepreneurship and more distinctly the start-up industry. Trevor worked as the Investor relations intern for The Tampa Bay Wave, a Tampa based start-up accelerator that helps companies build, launch, or grow their companies. Trevor assisted the director of investor relations in building The Wave's investor network and in turn helping company founders within the accelerator find possible connections to investment capital. In his time at The Wave, Trevor also worked on a project funded by the EDA to help educate potential investors across the state of Florida on what it means to invest in tech start-ups, with the overall goal of bringing more investment capital into the industry.

Trevor has been passionate about the world of entrepreneurship ever since he was a kid in Clearwater Florida. Trevor hopes to one day become a successful part of the business community by finding ways to continue the rapid innovation we are seeing around the world in a manner that is safe, sustainable, and beneficial for all current and future generations.
